As part of the University of Chicago’s commitment to diversity and inclusion, the Common Book Initiative aims to foster a sense of community by providing a common reading experience, examining current events, and highlighting diversity of lived experiences through discussions of the book and the major topics it addresses. This project will engage members of the campus community through a variety of academic and social programming.

The inaugural Common Book selection is Thi Bui’s graphic memoir, The Best We Could Do, which details a family’s journey from Vietnam to the United States as part of the “boat people” wave of refugees in the 1970s.
